

Gavagan to Move To Cut Proviso From His Measure

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Rep. Gavagan (D., N. Y.) announced to the House today that he would move "at the proper time" to eliminate from his anti-lynching bill a provision exempting violence in connection with labor disputes.

He stated this intention at the start of debate on the measure, which would impose penalties on peace officers who permit lynchings and on the political subdivisions in which they occur.

The provision which Gavagan said he would attempt to strike out says:

"Lynching" shall not be deemed to include violence occurring during the course of picketing or boycotting or any incident in connection with any "labor dispute."

Gavagan probably will offer his motion when the bill is opened to amendment tomorrow.

Only a handful of the legislators were present when the House convened an hour early (at 11 a. m., E.S.T.) in an effort to complete six hours of debate by night-fall.

Rep. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), one of the few northern opponents of the bill, told his colleagues it could never be enforced. As the opposition's first speaker, Wadsworth was greeted by applause from southern members.

He branded the bill "a snare and a delusion." A far better solution of the lynching problem, he asserted, is the program of education already undertaken.

He pointed out the country had 100 or more lynchings annually just a few years ago. In 1939, he said, there were only three.

Other congressional developments included an announcement by Admiral Harold R. Stark to the House naval affairs committee that the navy is seeking funds again this year for harbor improvement at the far eastern Pacific Island of Guam. A $5,000,000 appropriation for that purpose was refused by Congress last year; the sum now sought is $4,000,000.

Stark also disclosed that present naval studies indicate this country eventually may build battleships of 50,000 to 52,000 tons but not larger. Two capital ships for which funds are being asked this session, he said, will be 45,000-ton vessels similar to two of that tonnage for which appropriations were made a year ago.

The debate on the anti-lynching bill was expected to avail nothing more than to put the participants on record for political use.

Held for Vagrancy

Romeo De Berardinis, 20, and Lucy De Berardinis, 18, arrested at New Paltz Monday by Trooper Klein, on charges of vagrancy, were committed to the Ulster county jail for five days following arraignment before Justice J. C. Barnes of New Paltz. When booked they gave their addresses as 89 Lexington street, East Boston.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—After an early futile rallying attempt, stock market leaders today were shaken for losses of fractions to 2 or more points.

Declines were held to small amounts until around midday, when offerings picked up considerable volume for a brief interval and prices hit the lows of the session. Dealings then slackened and, near the final hour, extreme setbacks were reduced in the majority of instances. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 800,000 shares.

Buying ardor waned, brokers said, as further talk was heard of a fair-sized spring business recession and doubts were expressed that Congress and politics would provide any outstanding speculative inspiration over the near-term.

Bonds and commodities were ranged, as were the principal European securities markets.

Prominent stock sliders included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Loft, Texas Corp., du Pont, U. S. Rubber, Santa Fe and Great Northern.

Legging in the curb were American Cyanamid "B", Electric Bond & Share, Borden-Schrymser and Standard Steel Springs.

Modena, Jan. 9—The Modena Home Bureau unit will meet Thursday, January 11, at Mrs. Edward Fisher's home in Ardonia, where Mrs. Lester Arnold, local leader in the Family Life project will open a new series dealing with "personality." A good attendance is desired, to promote interest in the subject and to insure success in future meetings. A pot luck lunch will be served as this is scheduled for an all-day meeting.

Charles Thorne, of Clintondale, collector of taxes in the town of Plattekill will be at Dubois Grimm's store on Friday, January 12 and Tuesday, January 30, for the purpose of collecting taxes in this district.

Tickets are on sale for the oxytander supper and the old-fashioned dance to be held Friday evening, January 26, in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall. The proceeds from the affair will be used to defray expenses incurred in maintaining the hall. The supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock with Mrs. Simeon DuBois in charge of the dining room. Burton Ward is in charge of general arrangements. The Catskill Mountaineers will furnish music for dancing.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Modena Methodist church met Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. William Doolittle. During the business session the date of the annual church fair was set for October 24. Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Earl DeWitt, Mrs. Lillian Rhodes, Mrs. Cornelia Taylor, Mrs. Myron Shultz, Mrs. Wilbur Williams, Mrs. Anna Miller, Mrs. Philip Solbjor, Mrs. Hallock Harris and the hostess, Mrs. Doolittle. Refreshments were served. The place of the next meeting, Thursday, February 1, is undecided.

Relatives and friends of Harry Denton, who is a patient in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, received word of his continued improvement and satisfactory condition.

Miss Gladys Coy has returned to Port Washington, L. I., to resume teaching in the public school, after spending the holiday vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Harry Gerow, of New York, Mrs. Preston Pralidze and daughter, Phyllis, were among callers on Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter, Henry, Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Beatrice Ward has returned to her home here after spending some time with friends near Plattekill.

Mary Lou DuBois is recovering from a severe cold. Dr. V. B. DeWitt, of New Paltz was in attendance.

The Modena Fire Department conducted its regular meeting Thursday evening in the fire house. It was decided to build new closets in the fire house for dishes and kitchen supplies.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wager and son, Ronald, Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter, Henry, were in Newburgh, Friday.

Bungalow Burns On Wilbur Avenue

Fire, which started in a sofa in the living room, wrecked the one-story four-room bungalow of Martin Knorr at 314 Wilbur avenue, shortly before 8 o'clock Monday evening. According to the fire department no insurance was carried on the house furnishings, but insurance was carried on the house.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said that Mr. Knorr had told him that he and his wife and young son were in the living room listening to the radio and about 7:30 o'clock that evening they left the bungalow to go out and clean out the chicken house in the rear of the property.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock Mr. Knorr told his son he had better walk out to the gas station to see if any cars had driven in, and as the son passed the bungalow he saw smoke coming through the windows.

Running back the boy informed his father that there was a fire in the house. They ran into the bungalow and found the sofa on fire, and Mr. Knorr ran to a nearby neighbor's house and called the fire department on the telephone.

When the fire department reached the bungalow all four rooms were ablaze, and by the time fire was brought under control the interior of the bungalow was gutted.

The family lost all belongings, including clothing, in the fire.

To Be New Theatre

Financial Problems Solved As Firemen Rent Out Hall

Ellenville, Jan. 8—The Pioneer Engine Company, one of Ellenville's three volunteer fire-fighting outfits, has solved financial problems by leasing its large hall to a theater syndicate.

"We get about $275 a year from the village, but that doesn't begin to pay all our expenses," today said W. DeLois Craft, president of the company, "so we decided to sacrifice our auditorium to make ends meet."

The Pioneer Engine Company will still be at the service of the public and will continue to occupy its extensive club rooms on the floor above the playhouse.

The company's modern fire truck will occupy its present garage adjacent to the well-known Norbury Hall on Center street which has served as headquarters since 1904.

"It costs money to maintain a unit like ours," continued Mr. Craft, "and we think we are quite fortunate in making the deal."

The out-of-town corporation is making alterations which will convert the ground floor to an attractive moving picture theater with over 700 seats.

These changes include an extension from the rear and one side of the building and renovation throughout.

The salty tang of the Pioneer Company's record for valor and efficiency will be preserved in naming the theater Norbury as the hall has been known since its erection.

Trustees of the organization are: Andrew Smith, Roy Miller, Earl Porter, Allan Potter and Thomas Ingham.

Besides Mr. Craft, officers are: Floyd Howe, vice president; George Wolf, financial secretary; Alvin Zupp, recording secretary; Edward Traphagen, foreman; Harold Booth, treasurer.

TIME TO THINK

If Congressmen will really think, sixty days is small enough room to think in, for the budget is long and complicated, the needs of the nation are large and varied, the need for more defense is plain, but the best methods of attaining the ends are veiled in obscurity.

The need not only for clear, straight thinking, attacking the difficult problems involved with intelligence and determination, but also the need of personal integrity applied to public welfare is evident. The congressman who shouts aloud for balancing the budget, and who votes for more appropriations equally without consideration, needs to stop to think what he is doing. Certain increased appropriations are doubtless among the honest needs. Certain economies are doubtless possible. They can be reconciled and adjusted with useful results if the Congress will take thought.

Shouts and oratory are not thought. Representatives are elected, in theory at least, to represent their constituents. And most constituents want neither silly extravagance in government nor ignorant niggardliness. They want the same solid sense applied to governmental affairs which they try to apply to their own.

The budget nut is a hard one to crack. It's easy to criticize and hard to perform. It's the duty of every citizen as well as every member of the Congress to take careful, earnest thought about these things.

VICTIMS OF MARS

War in other countries is compelling Sweden, which has been at peace with the world for 125 years, to forego some of its freedom for the sake of defense and preparation for emergency. The parliament has just enacted a compulsory national service law. Under its provisions all Swedes can be called upon to perform specified kinds of work considered to be of national importance. No doubt, in operating this law, care will be taken to disrupt private life and private industry as little as possible, but the drastic law is there.

Sweden and other peace-loving nations have been compelled to divert more and more of their public funds to defensive military uses, though they know it is taking money away from constructive work. They have to tighten their belts and suffer lowered living standards because aggressive dictators have chosen the way of force to perpetuate their own regimes.

It's a mean business, cruel and unfair. Although the aggressors must lose in the end, victors and vanquished and neutrals alike must all endure the anguish and economic disruption of war.

SIX MONTHS' GAIN

Six months ago, says Walter Lippmann, "The country was still mired in the depression, there were sharp sectional and class animosities, the president had lost control of his party. Congress was a mere assemblage of angry factions, and public opinion was being victimized by the propaganda of native visionaries and of foreign conspirators."

Not a pretty picture, is it? But fairly recognizable. Then it began to change. Says the same commentator:

"It is evident that during the autumn the sound sense and deeper public spirit of the American people have reassured themselves, and that the internal situation is now well in hand. The panic is over."

It begins to look a bit as if this may be true. Americans are united in seeing that if the capitalist system is to continue, capitalists must be given more hope than they have had of late years. And on the other side, capitalists must themselves take more hope and dare more dollars.

They all see that production must go ahead and employ more workers. They also see that they have got to put the best mental power they have on the matter of distribution.

They are, in a word, ready to stop squabbling and get to work. To stop small fussing about who gets the credit for which small gain in the domestic scene and prepare to present a united front to any possible enemy at the gates.

Burying hatchets always was a good old

American custom. Working hard to improve the home was another. Keeping youth busy was a third.

If all the gains enumerated above have been made half-consciously in six months, what cannot be done in another six if we keep our minds on the job?

GOLDEN AGE OF INDUSTRY?

Awarding some admirable prizes for improvement and development of new metal products, an American captain of industry remarks:

"It's a shame that people fear technological progress will take away their jobs. It isn't so. Study of history should show that 100 years ago only two per cent of our workers were engaged in manufacturing; today it is 40 per cent. There are 200 times as many industrial jobs as there were before technology began its forward strides. New labor-saving devices have brought a continuous upward trend in industrial employment for years."

"Technology, new and cheaper ways to produce, will advance with great strides in the 1940's. Research and technological advancement will lead us not to greater unemployment, but to a higher and higher standard of living."

Well, we hope so. We want to believe that all this industrial progress and ability to produce more things cheaply is bringing a Golden Age for everybody. But always when we look around with clear and honest eyes, we find it isn't so.

There are thousands more employed than there used to be, but there are also thousands more unemployed. There is a great surplus, rising and falling but never vanishing, of people who can't find jobs. And on the whole, the surplus grows rather than diminishes.

Why is this so? Why can't all of us be employed all the time by doing and making things for all of us? We can produce limitless quantities of things, but we can't pass them around so fully and continuously as to put all of us to work and keep us all at work. Production runs ahead of distribution and the system stalls.

Now as soon as the Finns get their breath back, from chasing those Russians across the border, they'll probably be attacking Lenin grad.

The hardest thing about starting a new year is to survive the statistics.

OVERWEIGHT AND BLOOD PRESSURE

Many smile as they speak of a friend as acquiring, or having acquired a "middle-aged spread" although he is in his early thirties. As a matter of fact, this individual is or has aged himself by a number of years. So true is this that when the overweight individual of 35 who has the shape and excess weight of a man of 40, applies for life insurance, his premium costs him exactly as much as a man of 40 of normal weight.

Aside from the natural disadvantages of overweight which slow up the individual's physical activities, one of the more serious results is the increase in blood pressure. It has long been said that a man is as old as his arteries, meaning that as the arteries (blood vessels) lose some of their elastic tissue, the loss is made up by hard or non-elastic tissue. As blood cannot be pumped into a hard resisting tube as easily as into one that is soft and elastic, the heart has to use that much more pressure to push blood onward. This means more heat and tear on the heart.

Even when the blood vessels have not lost their elastic tissue, excess weight makes it necessary for the heart to push more blood through the blood vessels and the pressure must needs be higher.

In Proceedings of Life Extension Examinations, Dr. H. A. Ley says:

"As age increases and its accompanying changes take place in the body, it is well known that an increase in weight will usually be related to an increase in tension of the blood vessels — increased blood pressure. After a reduction in weight of 5 per cent or more, the blood pressures of a group of 3,516 applicants for life insurance were reduced despite the fact that the applicants were then five years older. Increases in weight showed greater increases in blood pressure than might be attributed to advancing age. Loss of weight in people of normal weight produced greater reductions than did similar losses in the overweight. Gain in weight among the normal-weight persons showed less increase in blood pressure than similar gains among the overweight."

In every way, then, and particularly in blood pressure, the advantage from health and length of life standpoint is always with one of normal weight.

YOUTHFUL AND TRIM HOUSEDRESS

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9087

For stay-at-home days . . . for marketing . . . for visiting a neighbor, there's nothing like a fresh, becoming cotton dress. In Pattern 9087, Marian Martin offers a tempting style that's simple to stitch up (with an occasional tip from the Sew Chart). The two-piece skirt is bias-cut for graceful, easy flare, and the dainty pockets are placed on an effective slant. There is top interest in smartly rounded bias yokes and in tucks around the neck which, together with above-the-waist darts, release gentle softness through the bodice. Make the sleeves short and gathered or in pretty little caps.

Pattern 9087 may be ordered now in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 35 inches.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Please to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

HERE'S EXCITING NEWS!

Townsend Group To See Movies

The meeting Wednesday evening of the Townsend Club at Mechanics' Hall, Henry street, will be a celebration of Dr. Francis E. Townsend's birthday. Frederick G. Brooks, national representative, will be the speaker.

Mr. Brooks will have some interesting announcements to make. He will also exhibit some moving pictures, showing Dr. Townsend and Louis Silva, with vocal reproductions.

The recently elected officers and advisory council of the club will be installed at this meeting by Mr. Brooks.

A supper will be served at a modest price at the close of the program. The meeting is open to the public. Children under 13 must be accompanied by one or both parents. Full attendance of members is urged.

Growers Meet at Rochester For Four-Day Conference

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Fruit growers from all parts of the state and representatives of the agricultural colleges of four states gathered today for the first session of the four-day annual meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held at Edgerton Park, the former city exposition grounds, where three buildings were given over to exhibits.

The State College of Agriculture and the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva joined in an educational exhibit, while the college also cooperated in a display of fruit purchased in retail stores throughout the state. Displays also included orchard supplies and equipment.

Roy P. McPherson, secretary of the society, said all the space had been taken in the three buildings.

The opening session was devoted to insects and diseases. Dr. W. D. Mills, plant pathologist at Cornell University; Dr. J. C. Chapman, entomologist at the Geneva Station; Weldon B. Robinson of the United States Biological Survey, and J. Roe Stevenson, Cayuga, organization president, re featured speakers.

Pre-Civil War Buildings Rated as America's Best

The general excellence of American architecture reached its highest point during the 40 years just prior to the Civil war, says Talbot F. Hamlin, librarian at Columbia University.

"This was an era of big and small houses," Mr. Hamlin continues, "but, excepting certain areas of the largest cities, and certain shacks and cabins of the purely shiftless, it was not a period of rich and poor houses. Squallidness is rare as to be violently noticeable.

"Never, before or since, has there been a period when the general level of excellence was so high in American architecture, when the ideal was so constant and its varying expressions so harmonious, when the towns and villages, large and small, had in them so much of unostentatious unity and loveliness. Walking through these towns one falls at once under the influence of this spirit and feels that these buildings were designed by, and built for, a people who had a new, vivid, almost overwhelming aesthetic sensitiveness and love of beauty in form and line."

This period of outstanding architectural development in the United States was the result of the revival of Greek architecture in this country, according to Hamlin.

"Though this movement was as wide as Western culture, its American expression was especially significant, and unique in its character because of the special conditions which surrounded the North American colonies. For the American Revolution brought a cultural as well as a political liberation. If England was now no longer the cultural inspiration, a more real inspiration came to take its place—that great fecundating inspiration that had sent wave after wave of influences across the surface of Western life—the inspiration of the ancient classic world of Greece and Rome. The whole country became at last architecturally independent and architecturally 'classic.' The colonial attitude was dead."

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Young of Milton street, at the Veteran's Memorial Hospital, January 3.

Miss Mary Budd is improving at her home on Clinton avenue, from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dierfelder are leaving this week to spend the remainder of the winter in the south.

Miss Mathilda Enkler, of the Junior High School faculty has been confined to her home by illness the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kilner left Thursday to spend the remainder of the winter at their home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Sam Leiberson of New York city, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Masors.

Mrs. Judson Hoornbeck is spending some time with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hornbeck.

Ripton, like many mountain localities, became almost a deserted village. The winter population decreased to less than 200. Where there used to be five schoolhouses, now only one is needed. Two big churches united to form one tiny congregation.

One Is Beloved BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

YESTERDAY: After a big send-off Bob and Sue move to Queen City. Their new house is large and their new neighbors, charming.

Chapter 32
Prosperity

JUST before six, after an exhausting afternoon of furniture placing and unpacking of books and clothing, sweet Mary Hampshire arrived with a hamper of steaming food.

"What a lot you've accomplished!" she exclaimed admiringly. "And what lovely old furniture you have! That Chippendale desk is a beauty."

Sue's face mirrored her astonishment. She was still more surprised when a few days later she found in the Hampton home pieces far finer than her own.

She joined the local literary club more to increase Bob's usefulness than in the expectation of receiving cultural enlightenment; and was jolted out of her cityhood complacency by finding most of the members far better informed on such matters than she was herself.

Later she was to come in contact with the petti gossip, the unbearable inquisitiveness, the narrow standards which remain like sediment in the sparkling waters of most country towns; but for this first winter, everything combined to present Queen City's most enjoyable side.

Sue had her sewing that peculiarly charming and touching garment-making of the young mother-to-be. She had the radio with world-famous voices—and for the first time in years, leisure to listen. She had enough housework to keep her in good health, not enough to tire her unduly. She had her interesting neighbors. She had Bob, and Bob had her.

They grew closer together every day. Bob talked over the store with her, described his customers, asked her advice about the spring orders. Gradually Sue came to know those who bought from him: first by his vivid, if sometimes ridiculous descriptions, later by personal acquaintance.

She knew the Steinhausen family on the big farm west of town: hard-working daughters of a stingy farmer who would not allow them, grown women as they were, to select their own shoes, but himself came in to feel with fingers hardly less leathery than the article they explored the stout lace oxfords, or thick-soled brogues. Once Sue saw him jerk from the wistful touch of his eldest a satin slipper at least four sizes too small for her foot.

And once Sue's heart was wrung by a young father who brought out four soiled dollar bills and said briefly they must suffice for shoes for both his children. The oldest, a boy of eleven, turned anguished eyes from the sturdy boots Bob's assistant took from the pasteboard box.

"Aw, Pop aw, Pop," he stammered. "Don't none of the fellers wear boots to school any more!"

"But you have to wear 'em in the fields, son; and Pop can't no ways git you two pair!"

They looked long at each other, worried, understanding, harassed father and agonized little boy; then the child gulped and nodded. Sue nearly wept with love of her husband when he came forward, saying pleasantly:

"Did I hear you saying something about needing two pairs of shoes for this young man, Mr. Layton? Well, you're playing in luck today, you sure are! I'm closing out a couple of lines—his size, too, what'd you think of that?—and that is once in your life when you can buy two pairs for the price of one!"

Because she could not trust herself to say what she thought of this, Sue commented that evening: "Do you have many days when you do business like that, Bob?"

He grinned impishly. "Old Pearson would fire me if he'd overhead that! But—out it might have been our kid, Sue, you know!"

Sue's Son

IN SPITE of such incidents or perhaps because of them, the new store flourished. "Old Pearson" wrote personally and encouragingly of its tiny success. If it held up like that for two years, they might consider starting another in Leighton, twenty-two miles away.

Spring came and the lilacs and spice bush and syringas burst into fragrant bloom. The grass was emerald beneath the apple-trees. The peachtree glowed with rose, with coral. Sue had a maid now, a husky country girl whose muscle was better developed than her brain. It was only by conducting the housekeeping along the simplest lines that Sue managed all. Pats and Allen, driving out to a late Sunday dinner, were disgusted and amused respectively by the service of the meal.

"You, Sue, of all people to live like this!"

"What's the matter with the way we live?" she demanded placidly.

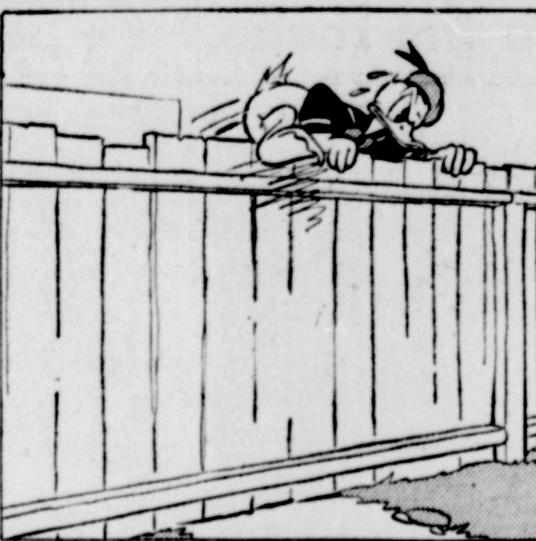

Her sister-in-law pointed elo-

ALLEN shook his head. "She knew I'd never consent to that! Lord, Sue," he continued with a hint of irritation, "don't suppose we've been all over that ground time after time? She was always asking for a divorce. We've hardly had one month's happiness together."

Unbelievably Changed

ALLEN shook his head. "She knew I'd never consent to that! Lord, Sue," he continued with a hint of irritation, "don't suppose we've been all over that ground time after time? She was always asking for a divorce. We've hardly had one month's happiness together."

A look of stubbornness replaced his dulled grief.

"I wouldn't—I won't. If there's to be a legal separation between us, Pats will have to be the one to get it, not I!"

"Even now?" she asked incredulously.

"More than ever now!" Anger flared in his sunken eyes. Let Forest Webb see how far he'll get with Pats hung round his neck!"

His sister was silent, stroking the hand she held. In both her smooth ones Allen was unbelievably changed, she thought. He was bitter, unreasonable, quick to anger. Pats had done this to him!

Case Is Settled After Starting

Settlement was announced yesterday afternoon following the opening of an action in Supreme Court before Justice Schirck to collect for injuries suffered by three girls in an accident at Ulsterville.

The three were Virginia Lombardi, of Burlingham, Lena Mrogi and Anna Basilacto, who were spending a week-end at that place. All three girls were riding on the running board of a car when there was a collision with another machine at the intersection of Route 52 and all were severely injured.

A settlement was announced after an adjournment had been taken until late in the afternoon.

The action was brought by the father of Virginia Lombardi as guardian of the three girls and the defendants are Raymond and Eckert Schaupp, of Spring Glen.

N. LeVan Haver appeared as counsel for Bull & Morreale, of Middletown and Andrew J. Cook appeared as trial counsel for Burke and Burke of Troy.

The plaintiffs claimed the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendants and that they and the driver of their car was free from negligence.

School to Have Selling Course

A course in retail selling will be organized at the evening school at the Kingston High School this evening at 7:15 o'clock. This course is being conducted under the provisions of the George-Dean act which was passed by Congress as a result of a study of vocational education by the federal government.

The act provides that those taught must be employed in distributive occupations or in other work involving contact with consumers. This includes managers, operators, department heads, sales managers and sales people in retail stores of every kind. This also includes store service workers in contact with customers: cashiers, adjusters, collectors, delivery men, messengers, bundle and cash girls and boys in stores. As outlined above, provision has been made for every employee from store owner to messenger boy.

There will be 24 meetings of the group which will meet every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the high school. All who are interested in joining this group are asked to meet at the high school this evening.

The usual evening school registration fee of $1 charge. The registration fee will be returned to those attending three-fourths of the meetings.

Five Men Hurt On Clifton Avenue

Five men were injured, but not seriously, when the auto driven by Chris Melbert of 23 Murphy street, skidded on Clifton avenue and crashed into a pole near the Charles Brown greenhouses about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The car was wrecked, but, according to the police, none of the occupants were seriously hurt. Melbert was cut about the lips while Charles Ellsworth of 50 Hurley avenue had four teeth knocked out. The three other men, all suffering from shock, were Jack Leonard of North Front street, Charles Chase of Lucas avenue, and Frank DuBois of Hurley avenue.

Airedale Lives 24 Days Without Food, Water

Lynbrook, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Rusty, an Airedale lived 24 days without food or water.

Inadvertently locked in the one-room home of the late Arthur Erickson, a bachelor, when surrogate's representatives searched the place December 13 for a will, it survived with a help of newspaper—for a mass of chewed fragments littered the floor when it was found.

A passerby, Leslie Ott, peered through a window and saw the dog stretched on a bed, so weak it could not respond to a tap on the window.

The dog broke in and found the dog had lost about 20 of its 30 pounds. They gave it drops of water; then milk; they mashed food; then beefsteak.

They said Rusty soon would be able to chase cats.

Are you at the mercy of a sniffly, smothery head cold? Why endure so much misery? A little Mentholumatum applied in each nostril, on the forehead and behind the membranes, check the sneezing, relieve the stuffiness, and help you to breathe more easily.

Also rub Mentholumatum vigorously on the chest and back to improve the local blood circulation, and thus gain extra help in relieving cold discomforts in the forehead and temples to allay headache and neuralgia due to colds.

Ryan Is Chosen Twaalfskill Head

At the annual meeting of Twaalfskill Hose Co. held Monday evening former Alderman Edward J. Ryan was elected president and former Fire Commissioner George Schick was elected treasurer and selected as delegate to the City Fire Fund Association.

Other officers elected were: Lawrence Conlin, foreman; John Stewart, first assistant foreman; Fred C. Lang, second assistant foreman; Henry Riggins, recording secretary; John Flannery, financial secretary; William Hecht, Fred Zoller and George Quigley, trustees. William Ryan was named as janitor.

Edmund Zoller was chosen as delegate to the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. Charles Dunn and Joseph Wenzel were named as delegates to the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association. Richard Wenzel, Frank O'Neil, Joseph Lynch, Henry Conlin and Frank Dunn were elected as delegates to the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Snow and Cold Weather

Two inches of snow fell in Kingston on Monday, according to the records in the city engineer's office and the city was still in the grip of a cold wave with the official city thermometer recording a low of 2 degrees above zero at 7:15 o'clock this morning. At midnight the official city thermometer recorded a low of 12 degrees and during the early morning hours the mercury continued to drop. While the official city thermometer was recording 2 above thermometers in other sections of the city were recording zero.

For Winter Sports

Ellenville, Jan. 8—Local winter sports enthusiasts are enjoying ideal conditions for sledding, skating, and skiing. Recent intermittent snowfalls have spread a three-inch blanket of white in this area.

A mild thaw Friday night was followed by near-zero weather to result in an icy crust that makes toboggan and ski trails lightning fast.

Many local skiers yesterday rode the billowing knolls of the Shawangunk Country Club golf course; skaters continued to thong the frozen municipal pool near Ellenville High School.

Youngsters may be seen "belly-slipping" on sleds at various inclines throughout the village.

And many a young mother has discarded the stroller to bundle junior up in heavy blankets and pull him around on a sled.

County Gets More CU and UC Plates

There have been a number of inquiries as to the significance of the automobile registration plates—CU, CU—100 of each of which have been issued to Ulster county car owners in recent years, and for which there has been a great demand, according to H. C. Finger, of the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau office. Mr. Finger said this morning that originally, in 1935, William R. Kraft, at that time chairman of the Ulster County Democratic committee, secured the allotment, on direct application to Albany, of 100 plates bearing the letters UC. As might be expected most, if not all of these original UC plates, seen on cars, indicated that the owner probably had Democratic leanings.

In 1936 County Clerk James A. Simpson secured 100 plates bearing the letters CU, which were issued to applicants at the Ulster county office.

After their original issues both UC and CU plates have been regularly issued here and to the first holders of the numbers, where early application had been made for their renewal. There has been a long waiting list of those who desired to secure one of these plates in case the original holder failed to renew or for any reason gave up his registration. Changes during the past five years have resulted in the plates losing some of their political significance.

Clerk Finger said this morning that no party lines are observed in issuing the plates and today it is a matter of first come first served.

This year, instead of only 100 each of UC and CU plates, the Ulster county office is issuing 999 of each letter combination and in addition has 999 plates bearing the letters UL.

Edith Barton In County Jail

tion bidding them goodbye and also telling that she intended to do away with herself. In all, three letters were received and it was through these that the officials learned definitely that she was in Florida. The letters were sent out from December 30 to January 2 and on receipt of the letters a check was made in Miami to locate her.

While the letters told of anticipated suicide, the officials believed that no such attempt could be made and the investigation was speeded up and continued.

Through an undisclosed source the local police and district attorney's office learned that she contemplated coming to New York and Florida trains were watched with the result that Miss Barton was located aboard the train which arrived in New York last evening. Acting Chief of Police Phinney and Officer Bowers met to New York city yesterday to be on hand when the Florida train arrived last evening. Police officials had boarded the train some distance outside New York and ascertained that Miss Barton was on the train when it arrived New York city.

It is assumed that since the letter has been under investigation for several weeks that an indictment has been returned against the former secretary of the loan association and that she will be arraigned in court within a few days to answer to a larceny charge. At present Justice Pinck is holding a trial term Supreme Court and arraignment can be made in that court the event an indictment has been handed up.

Miss Barton succeeded the late Arthur C. Connolly as secretary of the loan association. Since her dismissal by the directors N. Janin Fowler has been named acting secretary.

Finns Believe Reds Exhausted

cold region east of Suomussalmi, central Finland, as a result of the Finns' destruction of the Red army's 44th division.

Finnish ski scouts were said to be rounding up the fleeing Russians or annihilating them as the route continued.

Great numbers were doomed to death in the intense cold, reports said, while others were dying of starvation. Remnants of the Russian 163rd Division, which the Finns reported cut to pieces late in December, as well as the 44th were reported being mopped up.

The Finnish victory over the 44th division was attributed in Helsinki to Field Marshal Carl Gustave Mannerheim's instructions for winter fighting in the north country to "hit the Russians in the stomach."

As a result, the Finns were said to have concentrated their attention on disorganizing Russian supply lines and destroying field kitchens.

Moral Slipping

Even the hardiest Russians found their morale slipping as they were forced to fight day after day without warm food, these reports said.

Reports from many quarters agreed that in a week's action about Suomussalmi about 6,000 Russians were killed and more than 1,000 captured.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 Red army soldiers were reported to be making a hazardous retreat toward the Russian border.

While the victories in central Finland were received with jubilation in the Finnish capital, the Finns were said to realize the successes may be only temporary setbacks for the huge Russian military machine.

New Drive Expected

Dispatches indicated that the Finns expect the invaders to make another drive soon—probably on the Karelian isthmus.

The Finns' knowledge of the terrain and their organized attacks were said to have given them victory against the 44th division.

While the Russians' motorized equipment obliged the Red army to remain on the few roads available, the Finnish ski troops swarmed over the countryside—invisible in the snow—and smashed at the long Russian columns.

A lack of ski troops was reported to have prevented the Russians from combating these activities by cross country scouting.

Says Income Sinking

Helsinki, Jan. 9 (AP)—Finland's national income is "sinking rapidly," in the words of Prime Minister Risto Ryti, and she must have foreign credits to finance her defense against Soviet Russia.

Excelsior Hose Officers for 1940

At its annual meeting last night in the engine house on Hurley avenue, Excelsior Hose Company voted against the movement to combine with Wiltwick Hose and elected officers for the ensuing year. The new officers are (seated left to right), William B. Legislature Proposes Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Discharge of an employee because of a garnishee order against his wages would be a misdemeanor under a proposal offered today in the legislature.

The social and economic equities involved would seem to weigh heavily toward the abolition of the practice of discharge because of a garnishee," said Assemblyman Francis J. McCaffrey, New York Democrat, sponsor of the measure. Other bills introduced:

Require a motor vehicle operator on approaching a hill to slow down and giving a signal with horn or other device. (Senator William E. Condon, Yonkers Republican.)

Require group life insurance policies to contain a provision that, in event of termination of employment, they shall continue in force for 30 days without payment of further premium. (McCaffrey.)

Create a state tobacco control division headed by a board of five members to regulate and control the manufacture, sale and distribution of tobacco products to prevent adulteration by harmful and habit-forming drugs. (Senate bills.)

wartime crippling of Finnish export trade was issued last night.

"As a peace-loving nation, we previously have paid little attention to the munitions industry," the prime minister said.

"As a result of this, now that we have been attacked, we must procure arms and munitions on a large scale from abroad. Our exports are sufficient to pay only a part of the expenditure."

With national income "sinking rapidly," the statement went on, "the time has come when foreign credit is essential to us." It added that Finland would meet any new obligations "as faithfully as we have done up to now."

There were scant reports on warfare along the snowbound frontiers with Russia to add word yesterday that thousands of Russians had been killed and 1,000 captured in destruction of a Russian division, identified as the 44th.

It was the second Red invasion reported shattered by the Finns within 10 days on the central eastern front. Neutral military experts estimate the Russian division at 15,000 men.

A Russian communiqué issued early today told only of scouting activities, artillery duels and sporadic rifle and machine-gun fire after saying, "on January 8, nothing important took place at the front."

The latest reported developments in the matter of aid for Finland included allocation of 50,000 tons of Argentine wheat and the United States note to the League of Nations yesterday saying that Washington was consulting Finland directly on her needs.

A decree for the grant of wheat by Argentina was made public yesterday. Finland must provide for transportation of the grain. The transaction was in the nature of a loan without interest. The decree said the Argentine government may collect when it sees fit.

Orders 8,000 Mobilized

Brussels, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Belgian cabinet ordered today the mobilization of 8,000 unemployed men to make possible the release of 7,500 fathers of three or more children from the army. Belgium has about 27,000 unemployed.

A lack of ski troops was reported to have prevented the Russians from combating these activities by cross country scouting.

Directors Named

At the annual election of stockholders of the Universal Road Machinery Company held on January 8, the following directors were named: A. B. Shufeldt, L. W. Shufeldt, Howard Stephens, W. G. Merritt, C. E. Powell and C. R. O'Connor. Inspectors of election named are Dorothy M. Davis and Lila Randall.

Excelsior Opposes Re-Location Plan

During the years the fire company has been located on Hurley avenue it was said that no difficulty had been experienced in answering all fire alarms above the West Shore railroad.

Willis Roe, who has served the company for many years as president, was re-elected, as was William B. Martin to the position of foreman.

Other officers are Ira Hasdell, secretary; Charles Kelly, treasurer; Henry Trice, Jr., first assistant foreman; Fred Reis, second assistant foreman; Alva DuBois, Samuel Hull, John L. Struble, Edward Shader and Irving Egnor were named as directors. John Mayone, James Cave, Arthur Brown, Charles Reis and William B. Martin were chosen as trustees.

The Rev. William A. Grier was elected as chaplain of the company. John Douglas was named Volunteer Firemen's Association, and William B. Martin was named as representative to the Kingston Fire Fund Association. Delegates to the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association are Arthur Brown, Charles Reis, Patrick McConnell, Henry Trice, Jr., and William B. Martin.

Couple of Statements

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Here are a couple of statements the Senate heard yesterday regarding President Roosevelt's budget: Majority Leader Barkley (D., Ky.)—"Our situation is so precarious that we will have to walk a tight rope with all the umbrellas we can carry for balancing purposes in order to remain within the President's appropriations estimates." Senator Byrnes (D., S.

C.)—"Everyone in this chamber is in favor of economy, provided you don't touch any items that he is interested in personally."

Machines adapted to work of shoveling coal into the pit car underground, emerged upon the commercial market about the year 1923, their appearance in practicable form following a long period of experimentation.

9,000 Lights on Our Coastline

Aids to Navigation Date From Oil Flame at Boston Harbor.

WASHINGTON.—Lightships along our coasts have been reduced to 30, little more than half the total at the beginning of the century, but other aids to navigation have increased. Lights of all kinds have almost doubled in the last 20 years and now total about 9,000.

There are 40,000 miles of "coastline" guarded by the coast guard. This includes seacoasts and banks of the Great Lakes and navigable rivers.

"The first United States light-house was built on Great Brewster Island, at the entrance to Boston harbor, in 1716," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "It fared badly during the Revolution and was blown up by the British on leaving Boston but was rebuilt in 1783."

The first lights burned whale oil. Several lights occupied a lighthouse lantern, the glassed-in top of a lighthouse. The beacons of the early Greeks, Romans and Egyptians were fire atop piles of stone, and open flames supplied light in early lighthouses. When the Boston light was established some British lighthouses were still burning candles.

Navesink Most Powerful.

"Nine million candle power is the present light at Navesink, N. J., the most powerful United States marine light. It is one of the lights that guard the entrance to New York harbor. Electric lights now are used in most of the larger lighthouses, amplified by lenses of glass. The lenses revolve, causing the light to flash in different directions.

The first experimental radio-beacon was installed only 23 years ago at Navesink. Today all lighthouses and many lighthouses are so equipped. The radio-beacon is the only "light" that can pierce dense fog, day or night. With the aid of a radio direction finder and identifying radio signals from two or more lighthouses, even 200 or more miles away, a ship now can locate its position without other aids.

"Sandy Hook, built in 1764, was the first lighthouse at the entrance to New York harbor.

$702,000 for One Beacon.

The first United States light-house on the Great Lakes was erected in the harbor of Buffalo in 1818. The lighting of the Pacific coast did not begin until five years after the beginning of the famous gold rush; the first light was in San Francisco bay. St. George Reef light, near Crescent City, Calif., is one of the most costly lighthouses ever constructed. It was 10 years building and cost $702,000.

"During fog lighthouses have sounded strange warning signals. Boston light in 1719 fired a cannon; a Beaver tail, R. L., used a siren to operate a compressed-air mechanism to blow a fog signal. Air engines have produced powerful horns and trumpets, and fog signals were in use for many years. Today the most powerful fog signals are operated by compressed air or electricity.

"Buoys also bear lights, generally on acetylene tanks, and may have whistles and bells. Sea buoys are quite large.

"The whistles on most buoys are caused by the motion of the buoy in the sea. Air is sucked into a tamper as the buoy rises on a wave and is forced out through the whistle as the buoy descends."

Little Red Schoolhouse

On Skids in Wisconsin

MADISON, WIS.—The little one-room rural school will become virtually extinct in Wisconsin next year under a new "powerful financial incentive."

The state department of public instruction estimated that between 100 and 800 one-room rural schools will not reopen next fall as result of a law granting reduced tax assessments for closing of district schools having an average daily attendance of fewer than 10 pupils. The law became effective too late to affect this term's openings.

Land Is Changed by 610

Headed for Marital Altar

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Truth the proverb that there's many a twist in the cup and the lip is run out by the fact that 610 couples applied for marriage licenses Los Angeles county last year, failed to return to claim them. County Clerk L. B. Lampton said 940 persons had applied for licenses during the year, but that 25,330 had returned to claim them. Lampton still hopes to round some of the missing 610 who availed of the altar.

A waterfall estimated to be 10 feet high was sighted from a tree in the British Guiana jungle.

Human Body Mechanism

Every physical action exemplifies a mechanical principle and of all machines the human body is the most intricate. The average man eats and drinks about 5½ pounds of solids and liquids daily, totaling approximately one ton a year. All this goes into a stomach of about five pints' capacity, but which daily develops about nine pounds of gastric juices to digest the load. The human heart, normally, weighs from 8 to 12 ounces and makes approximately 100,000 beats each day. Functioning with the heart are the lungs, with a capacity of about 320 cubic inches, but which take in and let out scarcely a pint of air at each breath in ordinary breathing. The heart circulates the blood and blood equal to the whole amount in the body passes the heart every minute. The human frame or skeleton is made up of more than 200 distinct bones and the body functions by means of no less than 500 separate muscles, with a like number of nerves and blood vessels. The skin contains more than 2,000,000 vents for an equal number of perspiration ducts, each of which is about one-fourth inch long, but whose combined length is approximately eight miles.

V. D. R. AND CANDIDATE GARNER GAY AT JACKSON DINNER

President Roosevelt was in one of his best moods (above) as he attended the Jackson Day dinner in Washington at which he twitted Republican leaders for declining his invitation to attend the $100-a-plate affair free. He's shown joking with Vice-President Garner, who recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. At right, son Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., wears a patch on his forehead as a result of injuries in a recent auto accident.

Roosevelt Jokes Everybody, but None Knows President's Plans for Future

Taking as his theme "by their motives may ye know them," he told his hearers in Washington and at 43 other dinners that it was not so much the party to which a leader belonged, but the deeds he performed in the interest of the general welfare that counted.

"People tell me," he went on, "that I hold to party, less tenaciously than most of my predecessors in the presidency, that I have too many people in my administration who are not active party Democrats.

"I admit the soft impeachment. My answer is that I do believe in party organization, but only in proportion to its proper place in government."

Lies With Leaders

The future, he asserted, lies with those wise political leaders "who realize that the great public is interested more in government than in politics; that the independent vote in this country has been steadily on the increase."

"The growing independence of voters, after all, has been proved by the votes in every presidential election since my childhood—and the tendency is on the increase. I am too modest, of course, to refer to the most recent example—the election of 1936."

"Particular care is taken to say that the speech sounded like a valedictory. But Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) replied:

"That wasn't any valedictory.

Didn't you hear the President say he was having a lot of fun in this job?"

That paragraph led one senator to say that the speech sounded like a valedictory. But Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) replied:

"That wasn't any valedictory.

Didn't you hear the President say he was having a lot of fun in this job?"

"Motive in the long run is what counts—motive accompanied by good manners," he said. "If leaders have good motives and good manners and, at the same time, knowledge of the different parts of the country and plenty of experience, you can be fairly safe in assuming that they won't wreck your government."

No Clues Given

Those in the audience who were looking for clues about Mr. Roosevelt's political thoughts considered that sentence a possible recipe for a Democratic presidential candidate. Even though he did not discuss the approaching campaign directly, he included in his salutation to the 1,100 guests:

"Candidates here and candidates there—

National Chairman James A. Farley, who introduced Mr. Roosevelt, came closest to announcing his own presidential candidacy when his bald head gleaming a tomato red under the Klieg lights, he said with a broad smile:

"Fellow candidates, ladies and gentlemen."

Homer Cummings, former Attorney General and chairman of the dinner, noted that he was surrounded "by presidential possibilities and presidential improbabilities" and introduced Vice President Garner as "a salty personality."

Garnier, who is an announced candidate for President, was next to Mr. Roosevelt, and pulled his famous stunt of mussing the President's hair as he sat down amid applause after acknowledging the introduction. He declined to make a speech.

They All Wonder

All the speakers, including the President, expressed good-natured wonderment as to why Senators McNary and Austin and Rep. Martin, Republican leaders, had not accepted free invitations to the dinner.

"Why didn't our guests come?" Mr. Roosevelt solemnly. "I guess the real reason is that, like the small boy, they didn't want to go to heaven with this bunch."

The President received his greatest applause when he declared:

"Most of those who complained were the shouting optimists of 1929."

"I do not believe that the American people who swallowed that cannot optimism in 1929 will swallow pessimism in 1940—particularly out of the same can."

Partisan quibbles, he asserted, were "bit drab" in the light of world conditions. He added that the people of the United States recognize two facts today. First, he said, is that the world outside this hemisphere "is in really bad shape."

"The second," he continued, "is that we have made great gain in our own economic prosperity and in the security of our individual citizens. These gains must not be chipped away; they must be only a foundation on which to build further gains."

Looking into the new decade, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"Behind us lies accomplished a really big job. It was the creation out of the funk—the pure unadulterated funk—of the early thirties of a new spirit with which we can now face the forties."

That paragraph led one senator to say that the speech sounded like a valedictory. But Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) replied:

"That wasn't any valedictory. Didn't you hear the President say he was having a lot of fun in this job?"

"Motives in the long run is what counts—motive accompanied by good manners," he said. "If leaders have good motives and good manners and, at the same time, knowledge of the different parts of the country and plenty of experience, you can be fairly safe in assuming that they won't wreck your government."

Particular care is taken to say that the speech sounded like a valedictory. But Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.) replied:

"That wasn't any valedictory. Didn't you hear the President say he was having a lot of fun in this job?"
